

Highland Park House

Dallas, Texas, United States

Gascogne Beige veincut material in a total of about 165m³ in more than 34 different thicknesses.

This architectural work included the supply of cut-to-size honed massive pieces such as coat-of-arm carved piece, finials decorative pieces as pot corner over cornice, carved roman numerals wall panels, windows stone screen with lozenges holes as lacy effects, circular windows, internally slopping bulls-eye windows, architraves, cladding and paving, columns and capitals, balusters and handrails, rosettes and dental work.

